

HITCHCOCK'S COMMITTEE.

The Resolutions Adopted by the Mississippi Improvement Convention.

A Well Prepared Paper—Crittenden Makes a Ringing Speech—Other News From the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, February 7.—During the session of the Mississippi River Convention yesterday, a resolution was offered and referred, approving the plans for improvement made by the United States Engineers; declaring that the public works ought to be done by officers of the United States; that no work should be done by contractors; and that no contracts should be awarded except to public roads, and that Congress should enter into no project to establish artificial waterways until the condition of navigable streams is improved. Among other resolutions offered was one urging the appropriation for the improvement of navigation of the great lakes; one urging liberal appropriations for the improvement of the Mississippi; and one approving the Hennepin Canal project. During the proceedings Senator Logan and his colleagues of the Senate Committee that recently examined the Mississippi River improvement, entered the hall to take their seats on the platform. Senator Logan, Mr. Jones and Mr. Crittenden addressed the convention. Other speakers were Mr. Lowery of Missouri; Gen. Turner of Tennessee and Gen. Floyd of Louisiana.

Washington, D. C., February 7.—The most interesting feature of today's session of the Mississippi Improvement Convention beyond the regular business before adjournment, was the happy and patriotic speech of Gov. Crittenden of Missouri. The latter was sitting with the delegation from the South, interested observers, a number of workingmen, and others, suddenly, during a full, several delegations arose and ended on the Governor for a speech. The latter responded willingly and began speaking from where he sat, but was cut off with loud cheers and cries of "No! No! Go on the stage!" He was escorted to the stage and, after congratulating the speaker, took his seat. According to the news, all his public life has been favored liberal appropriations by the Government for the improvement of the great natural streams. When in Congress he steadily pursued this policy, and he assisted materially in making the Missouri River a highway. He always spoke of improving the Mississippi River. If he was now in that position he would vote for liberal appropriations for that purpose. The improvement of the Mississippi, however, was above all other considerations, and that project had his first and last support, knowing the interests involved and the necessity for its completion. The cause progressed very slowly. The testimony, which was sent to the printer several weeks since, is not yet in print, and nothing can be done until that gets back. The long delay in getting the testimony back from the printer delayed the publication of the report of the committee of the Government will take appropriate action in relation to the same. Both reports were addressed by accumulation, which caused great suspense.

OHIO River people want little water here below, nor want it little long. Still they have to undergo an annual spasm of hydrophobia on account of high waters that threaten the whisky in their cellars. They have the horrors whenever there is a prospect that they will be compelled to a sea-son to drink Cincinnati beer.

TEXAS, with all her great extent of cheap land, has just been passing through the throes of a popular struggle against big land monopoly combinations. The time seems to be coming when the great question will be whether there is any right or chance left to the individual which banded capital is bound to respect.

ON account of the death of the late Queen, the people of Madagascar are forbidden for two months to wear hats, plait their hair or carry umbrellas. But the missionary spirit of Mr. John Bull prevents any restriction of their indulgence in the town which he sells them at ten cents a piece. The late Queen's was, therefore, a joyful and protracted frolic.

THE sham of opera-going was illustrated in St. Louis last night by a half a house listening to "Lueda" while there had been scant standing room the night before with "Faust." We do not blame those who went to "Faust," but it is hard to maintain who stayed away when SEMBRICH sang in "Lueda."

WE feel authorized to state that the momentous questions of social etiquette that are agitating so many of the Washington correspondents will not immediately disrupt parties and produce a civil war. There is hope that time, brains and a spirit of compromise may bring about a pacification and save the country. Still, it will be well enough to wait Mrs. Justice MILLER, who inclines to be as rebellious a terror as ever BOU TOOMS was.

THERE is compensation for the loss and distress caused by the overflow of the Ohio River in the spectacle of superior virtue presented by the Cincinnati under such trying circumstances. The spectacle of a good man struggling with adversity is proverbially pleasing, and according to the reports of the Cincinnati people, which must be trusted on such points, they, all of them, display a composure, a resignation, a magnanimity which challenges the world's admiration. They are displaying a spectacle now and they are standing on the bank waiting for a seventy-foot rise in order to impress more effectually on the world the superiority of that moral grandeur which is the peculiar trait and distinguishing mark of Cincinnati.

his spasmodic outbreaks against criminals and in his remarkable efforts to favor such of them as are supposed to have political influence, Governor CHITTENDEN seems determined that the entire record of his relations with them shall be one long catalogue of scandals.

NAVAL AFFAIRS.

Day by day the people are beginning to get the benefits of a Democratic Congress. Yesterday the Appropriations Committee voted to appropriate anything for the completion of the three unfinished monitors. This may be regarded as a test. It indicates very clearly the difference between the purposes and policy of the present Congress and that of its predecessor.

The navy ring has long cherished those moulderling cheese boxes as the apple of its eye. It argued that if it could get Congress to appropriate money to finish these obnoxious hulks it could get Congress to do anything. Last year it got it in its work.

ROSENTHAL Speaker and KEIFER playing dummy for him, a committee was easily obtained to break the force of DICK LIDDL's testimony in the Galatin trial, and in more ways than one made the prosecution and the jury feel that the Chief Executive of the State, as well as one of the Supreme Court Commissioners, was on the side of the prisoner.

In that trial, an attempt was made to exonerate LIDDL's testimony on the ground that he was a convicted and unpardonable felon.

His alleged pardon, after serving three-fourths of the term given him for larceny in 1874, was said to be a mere discharge under the three-fourths rule, and not such a technical pardon as would remove the disability imposed by our statutes. The Judge in that case held that it was a full pardon.

The first duty of a Democratic Congress is to stamp out such nonsense. These undashed monitors have a certain value; they are worth what they will bring as old iron.

If we should spend the three and a half millions of dollars required to complete them they would be still worth what they would bring as old iron. A Democratic Congress is not likely to make such a mistake.

The naval cruisers will probably be a failure, but they must be built. Their cost will be so much money thrown away, but Congress is not responsible for that. When the Democratic party is put in charge of the Executive Department of the Government it will be expected to give the people a real navy, or at least a real navy department.

At present all that it is called on to do is to check the rank abuses of the ring, and this it is doing satisfactorily.

The United States Inspectors of steamboats and vessels (recently), having run out of sensible laws or orders to issue, and must continue to do so, in order to maintain the safety of the public, have been feeling the pulse of the leaders, to see if it can be made Mackay's successor. He is a man of great ability, and has a record of success which entitles him to be considered for the position.

THE CUCKOO CONVENTION.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, February 7.—The World says:

"Blackburn of Kentucky is a most impulsive gentleman. He has a quick mind and a ready flow of language. In the House he is perfectly at home. He wrestles readily with the problems that come up, and he never fails to demonstrate that he is a man of the people. It is to be hoped that he will be successful in his efforts to secure the adoption of the amendment to the Constitution which would prohibit the manufacture of intoxicating liquors. He is a man of the people, and he will undoubtedly receive the almost unanimous support of that section in the convention."

It is curious to look back at that motley crew that held possession of the House of South Carolina. It is a picture that will never be forgotten. Mackay is about the last one to disappear from public view. He is a man of almost entirely of colored voters, and letting him have his own way in it. Mackay was a man of great ability, but he was a man of a different color, and no one could have compensated for himself in the face of that Bourbon hatred that he did.

A letter was sent to Mr. Henry Irving apprising him that the club had been christened in his honor, and in a few days the following reply was received:

To W. H. A. Moore, Esq.,
Dear Sir:—I have received your letter of the 20th instant, and give you my hearty thanks for having my name associated with so gratifying an achievement. I am very much honored by the recognition of my countrymen among the members of the Irving Opera Company.

But the culture of the great colored peoples of the Eastern world, and there is promise of a future for your countrymen represented here, who are apt to be attracted rather by the occasion than the performance. Out of the mass of fulsome and extravagant praise which preceded Sembrich, it was possible to glean a few sound grounds of absolute criticism, but the author of the review is right in his opinion that she is one of the most popular and remarkable artists—not to say of the day, but of the century. That the audience was very poor last night reflects very badly upon the boasted love of music advanced by so many of the "society" folks, and proves that their appreciation of art is not based upon merit but upon fashion and occasion. Musical charlatans plentiful as is the crop of the latter. There was no excuse for those not being a crowded house last night, for every one who can read was made fully aware of Sembrich's greatness in advance.

"Loris" is a delightful work, and with one or two others will survive the great mass of the operas of the Italian school of a half century ago. In most cases, however, vanity and affectation to the sake mentioned with which popularity mechanical when long listened to, and becomes tiresome. But the musical and dramatic passages in opera are found in its score, and it requires a prima donna of more than ordinary ability to sing them with justice and effect. It has most recently been done by a half-dozen songbirds after a fashion, but its style is not good. Sembrich's singing is that of an artist. Of Gerster's and Patti's comparatively recent associations the public is well informed, and a German girl seems to be born after hearing those artists in the role once or twice. The French actress announced was not able to sing the next evening on account of sickness, and the second verse was given by another, and soprano was called in. After a short rehearsal she determined to try and play the part. She succeeded in doing so, and was commended to sing the part of Marianne, and standing in front of a large looking glass, was透視 through the half open door into the looking glass, and was surprised to see how perfectly she had imitated the singer.

The Cincinnati reserve team will have as much work to do as the regular nine. Already all their April dates are filled. Commencing April 19 they will be in the city for three weeks, and will be gone until May 26. Beyond May 26, will be made until after the scheduled meeting March 20, when the team concluded a tour of games during the season, half at the regular arena away—playing the reserve teams in the Northwestern League clubs, and clubs from the National Auto Association. The regular nine will open with a new crowd April 19, and the Louis reserve team, playing them also on the 20th. A very interesting match has been made between Carter and Gallagher for $500 a side at cushion pool, and the money will be split up between the two.

The next evening the team will be at the Auditorium, and the money will be split up between the two.

As the Olympics have a glorious way in the way of accomodations, we will be sure to be after hearing those artists in the role once or twice. Frank F. Hilder, commissioner to represent Missouri in the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition, at New York, in December on the first Monday in December, 1883, has just issued a circular to Missourians, calling on them to contribute their services to the State a worthy representation of their resources at that exposition; to aid in establishing a fund to enable the State to have a large delegation to that exposition. The committee will be in each of the large towns. He assures the people that he will do all in his power to serve the interests of the St. Louis exposition.

Do you ever notice how contemptuous a croup is of a hood-lum? One couple, the unprincipled ever, while in a wood, colds and coughs can be cured by Cousens Hovey of Tar, and the price is only White's Cream Vermifuge, the best worm killer.
